ONE OF YOUR INSTALLED BROWSERS WILL NOT CONNECT TO THE INTERNET - May 6th, 2011

If this is happening to you, or if a program that needs an internet connection is being denied access, your firewall is a good place to look for a solution to the problem.

Sorry I can't be specific as to the exact approach here because there are so many security programs in use, and so many variables in their firewalls.

If you look at the permissions granted by your firewall program for that particular program, you'll probably find that it is set to some version of "blocked" for that program.

Just change the permission for that program to the same permission level as your working programs and that should take care of the problem.
