IF STATEMENTS THAT MEET MORE THAN ONE CONDITION - Aug 3rd, 2010

If you've got a table called "people" and two fields "price" and "description" and you need a specific result depending on whether there's information in one, the other or both fields, you can approach it this way. Remember that the operator "!" means not so !$record['price'] means that there's no information in the price field.

<!-- If there's no price and no description, just show the title. -->
<?PHP foreach ($peopleRecords as $record): ?>
<?PHP if (!$record['price'] && !$record['!_description']): ?><?PHP echo $record['title'] ?><?PHP endif ?>

<!-- If there's no price, just a description, offer information only. -->
<?PHP if (!$record['print_price'] && $record['full_description']): ?>"><?PHP echo $record['title'] ?>Click the title for more information.<?PHP endif ?>

<!-- If there's a price and no description, ask for the sale. -->
<?PHP if ($record['price'] && !$record['description']): ?>"><?PHP echo
$record['title'] ?>Click the title to buy.<?PHP endif ?>

<!-- If there's a price and a description, offer information and ask for the sale. -->
<?PHP if ($record['price'] && $record['description']): ?>"><?PHP echo
$record['title'] ?>Click the title the for more information or to buy.<?PHP endif ?>
<?PHP endforeach ?>
